

Atlantic edge art garden

Close to Cornish Land's End, a unique land and art garden is emerging out of a hillside hollow. Amidst tropical plants, a different kind of art landscape is taking shape. Neil Armstrong, Tremenheere's (pronounced 'Tre-men-ear') guiding spirit, describes how his art garden has come about

For many years now I have lived and worked in West Cornwall as a doctor. During this time I've been involved in the art and landscape world, though as a peripheral figure, due to my location near Land's End and deep entrenchment in my home patch. After some years, children arrived, and the rewards and challenges of life as a family doctor continued. A chance to buy a beautiful wooded valley

